

Peer Review Summary Project 1 Draft 2

Dear Osama,

I really enjoyed reading your essay. It is a beautiful tragedy about how you grieved your friend's death and the perspective it gave you.

I like your introduction best, short and impactful. You wrote that "Salem, sent a weird question in our WhatsApp group that said 'If someone had a car accident in the 6th ring road, which hospital the ambulance will take him too?' " This part was extremely suspenseful and kept me reading.

I also enjoyed your theme of the perspective of life. I was also worried about my life and the story soothed me in a way I can't explain.

The idea is perfect, the source material is there, and you know how to hook your reader extremely well. But, if only you could improve your language skills, your story could achieve its full potential.

Firstly, your memoir has trouble with grammar. "After that, I couldn't concentrate on my study, so my sister suggested going home, and rest and I did," the grammar issues of this sentence echo throughout your essay; these issues really take the reader out of the immersion.

Secondly, the story could use more vivid imagery. For example, you could add some details about what it smelled like at the grave or how the "taste of grief" felt like, maybe explain how during prayer you struggled to hold back tears. Besides, it is better to add more imagery than you need to the story in order to make the story more engaging.

Despite its problems, I truly enjoyed your essay. It is an amazing narrative that gave me a new perspective on life and death, I cannot wait to see the story come to its full potential.

Regards,

Khalid Al Fehaid

P.S. It is extremely brave of you to share such a vulnerable part of yourself and your life, and I am sorry for your loss.
